BIRTHDAY OF SECRETARY KNOX.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—Philander C. Knox, Secretary of State, was reminded of his birthday when he arrived at his office this morning and found a great bunch of roses on his desk. During the day he was kept busy receiving congratulations from his colleagues of the cabinet, the subordinate officials of the Department of State, the members of the diplomatic corps who chanced to call, and Senators, Representatives and scores of other public officials among whom the Secretary of State is deservedly popular.

Although he has now reached his fifty-sixth year, Secretary Knox looks scarcely a day older than he did when he made his first appearance in Washington in 1891 to take up his duties as Attorney General in the cabinet of President McKinley. He was then comparatively unknown, except in the legal profession, outside of Western Pennsylvania. Today he is one of the best known men in the United States, and in ability is regarded generally as measuring up to the very high standard set by James G. Blaine, John Sherman, John Hay, Elihu Root and others who have held the portfolio of State in recent years.

The Secretary of State is a tireless worker, though no man enjoys the pleasures of life more than he. It is no uncommon thing for him to appear at his office before any of his subordinates in the morning. It is his habit to examine personally every important document, letter or reference that concerns the affairs of his department. This has developed a true faculty of self-control which invades even the domain of sleep. Day or night the Secretary of State can awaken at any hour, or at the end of any period of time which he may have determined. He can take a half-hour nap and awaken himself on the minute. In Washington the early-rising habit is a feature of his daily life. He is usually up at 6 o'clock and breakfasts with his family at 8. Then comes a romp with his little grandson, who is the apple of his eye, followed by an hour's drive if the weather is pleasant.

Outdoor life is Secretary Knox's hobby. No man in Washington is fonder of fast horses. He loves to hunt and fish and play golf, and he is to be seen frequently on the links with President Taft.

Mr. Knox has never cared much for society, but since taking up his residence in Washington he has bowed to the social demands of his position. Mrs. Knox, on the other hand, is extremely fond of society and is regarded as one of the social leaders of the cabinet circle. Their home life is simple, despite the stateliness of the stone mansion in which they live. Mr. Knox spends the most of his time when at home in the library, which is said to be one of the finest private collections in Washington.

Both the Secretary and Mrs. Knox are members of the Protestant Episcopal church and active in philanthropic and charitable work. The Secretary of State is a man of generous impulse, but he never permits any record of his benefactions to become public. A characteristic instance is related by a prominent and wealthy woman who called on him in behalf of a charity organization immediately after the great blizzard of 1898 in Western Pennsylvania.

She solicited a contribution for coal and food, and the response was a check for a very considerable sum, so large, in fact, that it led the startled woman to inquire:

"How do you wish this money applied, Mr. Knox?"

"As your organization thinks best. There are worthy and unworthy poor. I know, but they are all cold and hungry," was the answer.

FROM OKLAHOMA.

I left Brazos county June 2, 1896, and landed in Oklahoma the 22 of August. I like here very well. It is a good farming country. We raise everything here except fruit and some of the old settlers have a few peach trees.

I have not been back home since I left, but expect to visit my friends and relatives some time. I have a dear old grandma living at Millican I would like so much to visit.

The wind blows fearfully here sometimes. Everybody has a storm house and when the wind blows they make a run for the cellar.

We have a good crop. Our corn is up to a nice stand, but have not planted any cotton yet.

Our school will be out the last of May and we are going to have a big exhibition.

We have a good Sunday school and church. Rev. Baker will begin his meeting in July.

I would be glad if some of the Brazos county people would come up and enjoy the cool breezes with us this summer.

BALLINGER IS SEEKING NORMAL.

Enthusiastic Mass Meeting Passes Resolutions Calling Attention to City's Advantage as Site.

Ballinger, Texas, May 6.—Ballinger is after the West Texas State Normal with all the vigor the town possesses. The largest and most enthusiastic mass meeting ever held in this town was held Thursday evening. Every business house in town closed, and the opera house was filled to overflowing. Resolutions were passed and committees appointed. It was resolved, among other things, that Ballinger stood first in the fulfillment of the law's demand relative to locating the normal, first in healthfulness, first in accessibility, first in intelligence, first in social conditions, first in ideal building site, first in ready cash, first in supply of building material, and the Business League was instructed to meet any reasonable demands of the locating committee and compete with any and all applicants for this school.

The High School was dismissed, and the 700 pupils marched to the opera house, where they sang "Ballinger," to the tune of "Maryland My Maryland," and then marched out to give room for the men, who up to this time could not find seats.

M. A. Taylor, vice president of the Citizens National Bank and vice president of the Business League, acted as chairman of the meeting, and Judge John L. Gulon addressed the crowd, and music by the brass band, the orchestra and patriotic songs by a chorus of girls brought forth applause throughout the meeting. The matter of detail and plans of securing the normal were turned over to the Business League. No subscription for a bonus has been called for by the league yet, but several volunteer subscriptions of $1,000 and sites from five to twenty-five acres of land have been offered the Business League. The league will appoint a finance committee, and a bonus to equal that of any competing town will be raised.—Galveston News.

The above clipping shows the way a sure enough live town gets busy and goes after an enterprise. They are united, they act as one man. There are no factional fights that keep out every enterprise that might wish to come of its own accord, and knock in the head every public movement that is put on foot.

Here is Bryan hanging fire on a measly little ten thousand dollar bonus to secure a trolley line to the A. and M. College. An enterprise that would make Bryan a city and absolutely make secure our future. Yet we hang fire.

The Eagle learns that the bonus has all been subscribed but about $1800, and there it hangs. Think of it, $1800 standing in the way of securing an enterprise that means as much for Bryan as this one does. It honestly should be completed in fifteen minutes.

We should arise from our long sleep. Get together, secure the trolley and then go after something else.

FOR SAN JACINTO FIELD.

Senate Passes Appropriation of $30,000 For State Park.

Austin, Texas, May 6.—By a vote of 20 to 7 the senate adopted the amendment by Senator Hume making an appropriation of $30,000 for the next two years to add to the unexpired appropriation for the continuation of the improvements to the San Jacinto battlefield. The unexpired balance is $23,000, and with this added appropriation makes a total of $53,000 for the next two years. The house also amended the appropriation, allowing the same amount as the senate. The chances are now practically certain that the free conference committee will leave this item in the bill. This amendment was not adopted, however, before considerable opposition manifested itself, but when the votes were counted, it had materially reduced to only seven votes.

FAULTLESS PRESCRIPTION.

No Remedy for Stomach Distress and Indigestion so Perfect.

A scientific prescription for dyspepsia put up in small tablet form and called Mi-o-na is making thousands of quick and lasting cures throughout America.

There is no stomach disease (even catarrh of the stomach) that it is not guaranteed to cure, and E. J. Jenkins has so much faith in Mi-o-na for stomach disorders of all kinds that he will refund your money if it does not cure.

Mi-o-na, the faultless prescription, stops sour stomach, belching of gas, distress after eating heartburn, biliousness and nervousness.

It is well worth a trial by any reader of the Eagle who suffers from any stomach disturbance. It contains ingredients that not only give relief but that act on the stomach so beneficially that in a short time the flabby, tired out walls of the stomach regain their strength and activity.

Try Mi-o-na for a week; misery will change to happiness; despair to hope, dull eyes to bright and you will yourself wonder why you suffered so long with such a remarkable prescription at hand.

And only 50 cents for a large box at leading druggists everywhere.
